Product Description

Product description

100L FM200 Fire Suppression System Fire Extinguisher Gas Cylinder

The fM200 cylinder used by Guangzhou Xinlin Firefighting Equipment Co., Ltd. is a pressure vessel specially designed for efficient storage and stands out in the market for its excellent performance and reliable safety. Made of high-quality steel, this cylinder has a solid structure and is durable. It can withstand high-pressure environments and ensure long-term stable operation.

The interior of the fM200 cylinder has been specially treated and has good sealing performance, which can effectively prevent gas leakage and ensure the purity and stability of the stored gas. At the same time, its unique design makes the filling and discharging process more convenient and efficient, greatly improving work efficiency.

In terms of safety, the fM200 cylinder adopts multiple safety protection measures. Cylinders undergo strict quality inspection and testing to ensure their extremely high reliability and stability during use.

fM200 cylinders are suitable for storage and transportation of various gases, such as oxygen, nitrogen, carbon dioxide, etc. Whether used in industrial production, laboratory research or medical fields, it can provide safe and reliable gas supply solutions.
