Product Description

Product description

90L Hfc-227ea Gas Cylinder FM200 Fire Suppression Systems For Firefighting

The fM200 steel cylinder produced by Guangzhou Xinlin Firefighting Equipment Co., Ltd. is a high-quality pressure vessel that has won the trust of users with its stable and reliable performance. This cylinder strictly follows international standards and specifications during the design and manufacturing process, ensuring that every product meets the highest quality standards.

The fM200 cylinder is made of high-strength steel and undergoes precision machining and strict quality inspection to provide excellent pressure resistance and durability. Whether in high or low temperature environments, it can maintain stable performance and ensure long-term safe storage of gases.

At the same time, the fM200 cylinder also focuses on user experience and convenience. Its reasonable design and easy operation allow users to easily perform filling and discharging operations. In addition, the cylinder is equipped with an easy-to-read pressure gauge and clear markings, allowing users to know the status of the gas inside the bottle at any time.

In terms of safety, the fM200 cylinder also performs well. It adopts multiple safety protection measures, including explosion-proof design, automatic over-pressure release device, etc., to ensure that various potential safety risks can be effectively prevented during use.

fM200 steel cylinders are widely used in various fields, such as chemical industry, medical treatment, food, etc. Whether it is used for gas production, transportation or usage, it can provide stable and reliable gas supply to meet various needs.
