Product Description

Product description

hfc-227ea System Fire Suppression System Gas Cylinder Filled with Clean Agent Fm200 Fire Extinguisher

FM200 gas cylinder, as an outstanding representative of modern fire protection technology, provides safe and reliable fire extinguishing solutions for many places with its high efficiency and environmental protection characteristics.

Heptafluoropropane is a colorless, odorless, low-toxic gas with excellent fire-extinguishing properties. It can quickly reduce the temperature of the fire scene in a short period of time and inhibit the spread of the fire, thereby minimizing the losses caused by the fire. Compared with traditional fire extinguishing agents, FM200 has higher fire extinguishing efficiency, less damage to equipment, and is more in line with the requirements of modern fire protection.

FM200 gas cylinders are made of high-quality steel and have excellent pressure resistance and sealing properties, ensuring safety and reliability during storage and transportation. At the same time, its lightness and portability also make it suitable for various places.

In key places such as data centers, computer rooms, libraries, and museums, FM200 gas cylinders play an irreplaceable role. These places usually contain a large number of sophisticated equipment and precious cultural relics. Once a fire breaks out, the consequences will be disastrous. FM200 gas cylinder provides strong safety guarantee for these places with its efficient and environmentally friendly fire extinguishing performance.
