Product Description

Product description

High Pressure FM200 Price Fire Suppression System hfc-227ea Gas Fire Extinguisher

As an outstanding representative of modern fire protection technology, FM200 gas fire extinguishing device provides safe and reliable fire extinguishing solutions for many places with its high efficiency and environmental protection characteristics.

Heptafluoropropane is a colorless, odorless, low-toxic gas with excellent fire-extinguishing properties. It can quickly reduce the temperature of the fire scene in a short period of time and inhibit the spread of the fire, thus minimizing the losses caused by the fire. Compared with traditional fire extinguishing agents, FM200 has higher fire extinguishing efficiency, less damage to equipment, and is more in line with the requirements of modern fire protection.

FM200 gas cylinders are made of high-quality steel and have excellent pressure resistance and sealing properties, ensuring safety and reliability during storage and transportation. At the same time, its lightness and portability also make it suitable for various places.

In key places such as data centers, computer rooms, libraries, and museums, FM200 gas fire extinguishing devices play an irreplaceable role. These places usually contain a large amount of sophisticated equipment and precious cultural relics. Once a fire occurs, the consequences will be disastrous. FM200 gas fire extinguishing device provides strong safety guarantee for these places with its efficient and environmentally friendly fire extinguishing performance.
